The recorded report here is of interest for two reasons. First, the recent records from the coastal park indicate a high number of Peregrine falcons in the area, which suggests that the coastal park is a suitable habitat for these birds. Second, the records also highlight the importance of coastal areas in the conservation of Peregrine falcons. The report recommends that efforts be made to protect and conserve the coastal areas to ensure the survival of Peregrine falcons in the region.